Pastor Mark's Message

Dear CHBC Family,

If you have been reading my articles the last few months, then you know the topic has been – healthy church. I have more concern over church health than I do church size, church programs, church activities, etc. Healthy churches grow, healthy churches provide ministry to meet the needs of individuals and groups. So, when I think, pray, and talk to others about how to do ministry, it is about how to promote good church health.

With that in mind, and as we close out the year, I want to share a helpful article that I recently read. During Christmas we will have the opportunity to spend time with people, go to Christmas gatherings, and interact with family and friends we have not seen for some time. All of those holiday activities will give us more reasons to post things to our social media. People will be tweeting, posting, and instagramming like crazy over the next few weeks.

Very often when we put things on our social media we do so without much thought. We see something, hear something, and we want to share our thoughts or our reactions. Healthy churches think and care about one another and the lost world deeply. So, before we post to social media, I want us to think like Christians who care about one another and the lost. Read these twelve thoughts from an article by Mark Dever, pastor of Capitol Hill Baptist Church in Washington D.C., and the author of “9 Marks of a Healthy Church”.

The following is all from Pastor Dever's article:

What might be some indicators to consider before you publish a blog, Facebook status, or tweet? I want to offer 12 brief questions to ask. Think of them as indicator lights, the kind a pilot checks before take off.

1. Will it edify? Or significantly inform a useful conversation? (Mark 12:29–31; 1 Cor. 14:26) Think of what will edify others. All we do is in obedience to the command to love God and others. How will it increase their knowledge, faith, or love? Am I accurately representing positions you disagree with? Am I sure of my facts? Trivialities hopefully fill up our lives less than they do so much of the Internet. As John Piper has said, “One of the great uses of Twitter and Facebook will be to prove on the Last Day that our prayerlessness was not from lack of time.” He's right.

2. Will it be easily misunderstood? (John 13:7; 16:12) The privacy of a personal conversation limits misunderstanding. Some public posts will sound one way to those who know us and another to those who don't. Negative assessments are often best shared privately, or not at all. How many of us have learned at our workplace that e-mail is a terrible way to share negative comments? When it comes to public postings, ask yourself: Are there reasons I may not be a good person to speak on certain matters?

3. Will it reach the right audience? (Mark 4:9) If you're correcting someone, should the audience be wide—or more narrow? Is that audience correctable?

Pastor Mark's Message continued

When you use social media, consider who's listening. What if everyone in your church eavesdropped on your conversations today? Yet we do this all the time online.

4. Will it help my evangelism? (Col. 1:28–29) Is what you're about to say going to help or hinder those you're evangelizing? Is it likely to diminish the significance (to them) of your commitment to the gospel, or enhance it?

5. Will it bring about unnecessary and unhelpful controversy? (Titus 3:9) Think carefully about controversy. The line between the vigorous exchange of ideas and a kind of social war is sometimes thinner than we think. What's this particular controversy to which I'd be contributing good for? Might it be unhelpful? How much time will it take up? Is this an unavoidable primary issue, or a matter about which disagreement is fairly unimportant? Will this controversy play into any other division that threatens the unity of my local church?

6. Will it embarrass or offend? (1 Cor. 12:21–26) Will anyone be embarrassed or offended by what you're saying? I understand that the mere fact something is offensive doesn't mean saying it is wrong, but we must be sure it's worth it.

7. Will it convey care? (1 Cor. 12:21–26) Will those mainly concerned appreciate your motives? Privacy in communication conveys care, an honoring of the person receiving the information. You like the fact that your doctor's report is private, but you don't mind that the store's sale is advertised. If someone would rather be addressed in person, why not do that?

8. Will it make people better appreciate someone else? (1 Cor. 12:21–26) Point out God's grace in the lives, ministries, and arguments of others. Highlighting something that will build esteem for someone else glorifies God and encourages others to see his work in them.

9. Is it boasting? (Prov. 27:2) Does what you communicate online draw attention to yourself more than your topic? How could that be spiritually harmful? Will it leave people with a more accurate understanding of yourself? Are you simply being tempted to draw attention to what you know? When was the last time you encouraged others by sharing something embarrassing or even sinful about yourself?

10. Is the tone appropriate? (2 John 1, 12; Col. 4:6; Eph. 4:29; 2 Tim. 2:24–25) Will people understand and be encouraged in the truth you communicate? How important is the tone to your message being rightly received? Is it evidently kind, patient, and gentle? The literal tone of your voice and the look on your face fill out so much of what you mean. In a personal conversation, you can more quickly understand that something needs clarifying. The Internet doesn't sanctify anger or frustration.

11. Is it wrong to say nothing? (Rom. 1:14) Do you have an opportunity or even a responsibility to communicate something? Some of you do this for your job. Have you established a "relationship" with readers, friends, and followers online that would expect you to comment on a particular issue or situation? Our freedom of speech is a wonderful stewardship. Use it well and responsibly.

12. What do others advise? (Prov. 11:14; 15:22; 24:6) When you're about to communicate something provocative, do you have good sounding-boards to help you estimate the response? Do you take the time to consider before you publish? Speed of response is both an ability of the Internet and a temptation to speak too quickly (contra James 1:19; Prov. 10:19; 14:29; 16:32; 17:27). Remember, you will give an account for every word you type (Matt. 12:36). Does saying things at a "safe distance" from people tempt us to say things we wouldn't say in person?

Perhaps you could write down these questions and ask a friend to look over your social media feeds with them in mind. Or, even ask someone you know disagrees with you on an issue you've posted about and see what they say.

This might help us love one another better, and could potentially improve our holiness. Don't miss the opportunity to make your social media an outlet for growth in you, and good in the Kingdom.

By His Grace and For His Glory

Pastor Mark

La lámpara de tu cuerpo

Llegó la época de las luces nuevamente. Los coloridos de la Navidad siempre alegran el ambiente en la vida familiar o del entorno en el que nos desenvolvemos. Para muchos la Navidad es muy alegre como también para muchos la Navidad es de mucha nostalgia por ser extranjeros en otro país como nuestro caso. Sin embargo, mientras estemos o seamos extranjeros deberíamos darle una revisadita a la lámpara que alumbra nuestro cuerpo en medio de muchas tinieblas que nos rodean. Veamos lo que la Biblia nos dice al respecto: La lámpara del cuerpo es el ojo; así que, si tu ojo es bueno, todo tu cuerpo estará lleno de luz: pero si tu ojo es maligno, todo tu cuerpo estará en tinieblas. Así que, si la luz que en ti hay es tinieblas, ¿cuántas no serán las mismas tinieblas? (Mateo 6.19-24) Que interesante que nuestro cuerpo, metafóricamente, también cuenta con una lámpara. El fin de cada lámpara es alumbrar hacia fuera pero esta lámpara (el ojo) alumbrar hacia dentro del cuerpo. Lo que mira el ojo lo envía hacia dentro del cuerpo. El ojo bueno mira cosas buenas Pero el ojo malo Mira con envidia, con deseo adúltero, con codicia, y desenfreno. Tinieblas es la ausencia de luz símbolo de muerte, ceguera espiritual. Símbolo de perdición en el infierno y prisiones de oscuridad (1 Pedro 2.9)

La audiencia que escuchaba a Jesús era individualmente retada a reflexionar su situación como también hoy Jesús nos reta a hacer una revisión personal. Al discípulo como segunda persona a quien Jesús dirige su enseñanza le dice: De tu ojo dependerá si estarás en luz o en tinieblas. De lo que tu ojo alumbre dependerá si todo tu cuerpo estará en luz o en tinieblas. La lámpara (el ojo) está en funciones todos los días, en tiempo presente pero los resultados apuntan hacia el futuro, ya sea para estar en luz o en tinieblas.

Depende mucho de qué se está alimentando nuestra lámpara (ojo), si es el de mirar con envidia, con codicia, a con desenfreno eso también serán los resultados. “Así que” prestarle mucha atención a este consejo en la vida es cuestión de sabios. Porque el ojo lo puede mandar a las tinieblas.

Allí será el llanto y el crujir de dientes, cuando veáis a Abraham, a Issac, a Jacob y a todos los profetas en el reino de Dios, y vosotros estéis excluidos. Luc. 13.28

Así que, tiempo es de revisar la lámpara del cuerpo para no estar en apuros en el futuro.

A Word from Pastor Scott

“Why are you in despair, O my soul? And why have you become disturbed within me? Hope in God, for I shall again praise Him for the help of His presence.” Psalm 42:5

Hope

This is a season of hope...for many.

For others, however, the wondrous story of the birth of our Lord and the anticipation of His death and resurrection for our redemption goes wholly disregarded. Our compassion for such as these should come as we remember that we once were, “separated from Christ, excluded from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers to the covenants of promise, having no hope and without God in the world.” Ephesians 2:12

The absence of hope in our society is at a critical level. I believe it is the enemy’s ultimate strategy in his quest to bring destruction into individual lives. When I read the Word I see too that true, abiding, steadfast hope is only available to those who are His! That is why the psalmist preaches to himself, “Hope in God!” because he knows it is accessible, having experienced the “help of His presence” in days past. Consider what that means for one who has no living faith in the Lord Jesus. Terrifying.

So hope is a function of living faith, not just a theoretical belief about our future salvation. Hope is entirely Christ-centered. Its nature is not in blessing me but focused on the rule of Christ “so that God may be all in all” (1 Corinthians 15:28). Hope is not based on my good works but on the works of Christ, “who is our hope” (1 Timothy 1:1). It is His gift to us who believe. “Now may our Lord Jesus Christ Himself and God our Father, who has loved us and given us eternal comfort and good hope by grace, comfort and strengthen your hearts in every good work and word.” 2 Thessalonians 2:16

We are encouraged in Hebrews, “And we desire that each one of you show the same diligence so as to realize the full assurance of hope until the end, so that you will not be sluggish, but imitators of those who through faith and patience inherit the promises” (vs. 61-12). Why is it important that we preach hope to ourselves? To overgeneralize a bit, living hopeful lives bears a refreshing balm to a hopeless world! True, but not enough. I need to be more specific here... because I know there are hopeless people in my life!

I see two problems. One, we live life as those who have no hope. We are caught up with all the same fears, apprehensions, bitternesses, and uncertainties as the rest of the world and the expression of our hope is put under a basket (Matthew 5:15)! Two, we hoard our hope. All its manifestation is in the environment of other hopeful people. We become encouraging to one another, a good thing, but are like a city in the valley rather than on a hill (Matthew 5:14).

The remedy to problem one? Preach to yourself...“O my soul, hope in God!” Jeremiah, the Weeping Prophet, tells us, “‘The Lord is my portion,’ says my soul, ‘Therefore I have hope in Him.’ The Lord is good to those who wait for Him, to the person who seeks Him” (Lamentations 3:24-25). Draw near to God and He will express hope in you as he draws near to you.

The remedy for problem two? Well, this has a more practical solution. Let us be more strategic in the lives of those who do not know Him. The Holy Spirit has made us all aware of individuals in our lives who need hope, the kind of secure hope that we know! Invite them to your community of hope to whatever celebration or service you attend this Christmas.

To Him be the glory, who is our hope!

“Surely my soul remembers and is bowed down within me. This I recall to my mind, therefore I have hope. The Lord’s lovingkindnesses indeed never cease, for His compassions never fail. They are new every morning; great is Your faithfulness.” Lamentations 3:20-23

Be Hospitable to One Another...

In the November edition of Branches we discussed what it means to bear with one another. We reflect God's forbearance when we exercise patience toward our brother or sister. In this series we are exploring our neediness in the body and how this affects our relationship to one another.

1 Peter 4:9 says, "Be hospitable to one another without complaint." One translation says without grumbling. In light of our holiday plans this seems an interesting verse, as if it is natural to have people over and be touchy or irritable or complaining. Sometimes, maybe most the time, this attitude escapes the notice of our guests. However, if we are to maintain a pure heart before God and unity in the body we must fight against this response of our flesh.

At the root of a complainer is a discontent with his lot in life. James understood that our quarrels are a result of our passions at war within us (James 4:1-3). Placed within us, as believers, is the desire to discern and long for what are God's desires for our lives. Ultimately, our complaints must fall at His throne...and what a good place to start rather than toward our brothers and sisters!

Being hospitable implies a reaching outward. This resists the inward self interests we so often cling to at the expense of ministry to the body of Christ. Let us be hospitable with the proper attitude that reflects our Master.

"Do all things without grumbling or disputing; so that you will prove yourselves to be blameless and innocent, children of God above reproach in the midst of a crooked and perverse generation, among whom you appear as lights in the world."

Philippians 2:14-15
